Meet the Hyacinth Macaw!

Hyacinth Macaws have vibrant cobalt blue feathers, which contrast beautifully with their bare yellow eye rings and the yellow patch of skin beside their lower bill.

The Hyacinth Macaw is the largest parrot species in the world, measuring up to 100 cm (3.3 ft) in length.

These stunning birds are native to central and eastern South America, where they inhabit palm swamps, woodlands, and other semi-open, wooded habitats.

They are known for their gentle and loving personalities, often forming strong pair bonds that last a lifetime. Unfortunately, Hyacinth Macaws are endangered due to habitat loss and illegal trade.
